Dear All,

The academic year 2020-2021 has begun and, in view of the situation, teaching is online, as are most social activities.

I would like to emphasize that even in digital spaces, every effort must be made to maintain a respectful work environment, free of insinuations or any form of sexual harassment; the same applies to all comments, videos and presentations that are uploaded to the network. Respectful discourse should be maintained in lectures, as well as in online communication between lecturers and students, among students themselves, and also in chat exchanges during lessons.
Please refrain from uploading and sharing photographs of a disrespectful and/or sexual nature, such as revealing dress, sexual illustrations, etc.

A non-respectful study or work environment may be humiliating, objectifying, demeaning and, in some cases, could be construed as sexual harassment.

Please avoid such behavior! Several complaints of this nature were brought to our attention in the second semester last year.

In case of need or if you have any questions, please contact the Commission for the Prevention of Sexual Harassment.

Wishing you a healthy and productive academic year,

Prof. Tamar Brosh, Mrs. Dana Silvera-Sharir
